

You Choose Your Life?

I agree that this is the usual explanation – it's not the physical self, the little me, the ego with limited vision and understanding that "decides" where, when and how it is time to pass from this existence. If "that" self decides when and how to die, we call it suicide and make it illegal. It must be against God's will if God was the one that decided that we should be here and experience what "he" gives us.

If God gives us a nice, warm, pleasant life, we thank him and say we are blessed and that we must have pleased him or we had evolved to a very highly conscious state.

What if we happen to be one of the millions of people that are born into poverty, abuse and terror, everyday. The same rules must apply, therefore "we" may ask them, why did you "choose" this life for yourself? Or, we may say - how are you enjoying the learning experience that your higher self or your God has given you to endure, I'd help you but it's really your problem to work through. We may say that it just supports the evolutionary story of the survival of the fittest, and if you have the stuff necessary, you will pull yourself out of the situation – after all, some people do.

So, for those of us that believe in some kind of existence before and after this life, we can speculate on what "state" our "higher" consciousness or soul is in before birth and after death and what relationship to it we might have while we are alive. However, for a disembodied evolved soul to exist in a state where it can sit in a smoking room with a cigar and a brandy and contemplate the goings on down here on the earth and discuss it with friends, family, Angels and "God" and determine that it would like to experience what life is like being tortured and abused, it would stand-out like a sore thumb when it arrived here and would be called Jesus or Buddha.

In my view, things are much more "natural" than that. Cause and Effect and the general state of Awareness of Human Consciousness is the driving force of Attraction. We are each the expression of our own awareness of the group consciousness. To the extent that our own (souls) awareness has grown, we are faced with a field of possibilities. Each possibility opens and closes as circumstances (energy/vibration/twist) change. For an unaware entity, the field of possibilities is relatively small and when an opening appears it is sucked in – just like in its physical life, it doesn't even know where it is or how it got there and doesn't recognise any choices for it to make.

A more aware entity may be able to keep itself from being attracted to the first opening, it may even be able to avoid all such openings and stay where it is. At this level, some expression of choice might appear.

At a higher level of awareness, the field of possibilities is larger, but the entity will always create a physical being that is a reflection of its level of awareness. Wherever this being turns up, it will be obviously "special".

We are not just "individuals" creating our own experience

Just as in the physical, we are part of the whole and our experiences are influenced by the actions and energies of those around us and those distant from us. Human Group Consciousness has a strong influence, but then other reflections of consciousness also feed in. If the actions of the group dictate that we need lots of people to abuse, then any “available” entities that can’t resist that force, will be created to fill this roll. Society “says” it needs victims to make the rest of us feel good about ourselves. It says it needs enemies to fight and slaves to exploit, so they are created.

Strong minded individuals with the Will to take action to make things manifest here on earth do not need to be highly conscious or aware people or even believe in a soul or a god. They create the physical vibration into which other human entities are attracted in order to create their vision of reality. “Ask and you shall receive” – the driving force comes from the physical – we have to Choose who and what we want to be and what kind of earth we want to inhabit. God is not dictating anything and our higher self is patiently waiting for us to make contact and ask it for help and guidance. The Genie within is waiting for your wishes, and there are no limits on how many wishes you can ask for.

If YOU are not deciding, someone else is!

When humanity decides that it no longer needs people to exploit, then there won’t be any more “victims” created. The group consciousness will have risen and expanded and even the least of us will be happy and nourished and set for rapid growth. It just needs us to “consciously” choose at the physical level.

What is the evidence of these situations?

Mediums bring messages from “dead” people – these people are the same as they were when they were alive, except they are now living in a different “space” with some different laws. They didn’t become “enlightened” when they died, they simply moved to a new experience with new lessons.

Near death experiences – people find themselves in a beautiful place, usually with dead relatives and loved ones. Because they “came back”, they report being faced with a choice to either go back to earth (and typically complete a task) or move on, or they were simply told they had to go back.

Past life regression – usually under hypnosis, people are taken “back” to a time before they were born. They often report that they could see their “potential” mum and dad and that they even talked to them (in their dreams or to their soul part) to determine if this is a good-fit family situation, what their name should be, what kind of life they might experience and even when and how they would die again.

Childhood memories of “before” birth – similar stories to regressions. Some children give very detailed descriptions of who they were “before”, where they lived, their family members etc – these have often been verified as very accurate and detailed.

In the past, reincarnations would have been within the same family line or physical region or within the same culture. As the world has become more connected, the awareness of possibilities allows for a much wider “choice” of movement, both physically and culturally, and experientially.

Don't these experiences support the idea of us choosing our physical life plan before we arrive here?

What do YOU think?
